

Let's talk about...

Helping your child's Development

Get the ball rolling!

Are you concerned about your child's development and wondering how to best support it? You are not alone.

Join us to learn about the next steps to take for positive outcomes and connect with parents just like you. Our trained parent peer workers will share their experience in finding the right supports for concerns about their child and achieving goals.

During this one-hour interactive workshop, you will:

- Learn how one family took their first step to connect with supports
- Find out about help and services available in your community
- Discover strategies that have worked for children and their families
- Connect with other parents to learn together and share knowledge
- Learn about Now & Next, an award-winning program to achieve positive learning and relationship outcomes for the entire family

We value diversity and welcome all families
