

Building relationships for a thriving family

Let's explore how to foster positive family outcomes through relationship health

One of the most important relationships we have is with our partner, and sometimes we need to reconnect. It can be challenging to navigate the complexities of life yet not lose sight of the vision we hold for ourselves, our relationships and our family.

A healthy relationship with our partner leads to better family outcomes because when we as parents thrive, everybody thrives. This requires communication, but how well do we know the layers of connection needed?

This workshop will guide you to renew, refresh and perhaps rediscover connections for a stronger relationship. It focuses on a positive approach to helping your family flourish as you and your partner move towards your goals.

Come along to explore:

- The power of reflection to gain clarity about what's important for you
- The key areas and importance of having a connected vision
- The Relationship T.H.R.I.L.L.S. framework
